OPENING OF THE HORSE SHOW

Madison Square Garden Filled with the Equine Beauties.

The shrill whining of the sleek filly and the Senorous neigh of the majestic stallion blended in equine harmony at Madison Square Garden this morning and made gladsome music to the ears of the true lover of all that is confessions of candidates under the Corrupt beautiful in horseflesh.

There were other noises of hammer and plane, and the crispy whir of the currycomb | Prohibition party candidates in one bundle, as it awished over the glossy coats of petted and their reading furnished a great deat of enthoroughbreds in the hands of grooms who tertainment. hurried to make their equine charges as pretty as pictures. All these were the concomiants of the opening of the sixth annual exhibition of the National Horse Show Association The show starts in with a rush and bustle that carries with it the conviction that nothing short of the most complete success will attend the really herculean labor which has been expended preparatory to making an aristogratic equine amphitheatre out of the beautiful and spacious Garden of music, with its delightful As early as yesterday morning group after

Continue To-Morrow. Some of the candidates evidently spent money as liberally as though they were not certain of defeat, while others had thriftly refused to contribute a cent to the cause. A study of the expense bill filed by W. Jennings Demorest shows that he acknowledges naving expended $8,577.06 for the nonro of receiving 1,000 or more votes.

Of this amount $2,948.06 was paid the newspapers for advertising his candidacy, and the balance was paid for printing and addressing circulars, bill-posting, postage, car fares and like sundry expensions.

The Prominition candidates who swear that they paid absolutely nothing in the way of election expenses are Hobert Biair, who ran for Alderman in the Ninth District; Frank Helyes, candidate for Assembly in the Seventh; Asron Holland, for Alderman in the Sixteenth; william S. Pulver, for Congress in the Seventh District, William H. Lorch for Assembly in the Twelfth, A. Jodson Brinkernoff for Assembly in the Ninth, George W. Hoyt for Alderman in the Fifth, Timothy N.
